An Empty Victory . . .

may well be the reward of man as he masters the physical universe, if he does not at the same time succeed in providing the essentials of meaningful living. Too many of our fellow men are destined to live distorted and unrewarding lives if we fail to develop and apply resources of human understanding and mutual helpfulness. This will be especially true for those with impairments resulting from accident and disease.

Though we are individuals, we are heavily interdependent. The distress of one is unavoidably the distress of all. If opportunity is denied any person, if he cannot function purposefully, if he cannot live in dignity and with self-esteem, if he cannot exploit his unique resources of personality and ability, the achievement of all of us is thereby limited.

It is, therefore, with a great deal of satisfaction that I have observed the growth and development of the comparatively new formal practice of human rehabilitation in our state. The skills of medicine, psychology, social work and education are being combined to find and make effective new approaches to the problem of human development. Resources and facilities where these skills may be applied are increasing rapidly in scope and number throughout Minnesota.

This volume, Directory of Rehabilitation Resources in Minnesota, represents a unique effort to catalog systematically the services and resources available for human rehabilitation throughout the rural as well as in the urban areas of the state. This volume will be a useful and essential tool to the rehabilitation specialists throughout Minnesota in identifying and locating the services and facilities needed by persons who come to them for treatment or counsel. The Directory will also reveal where important resources are lacking and where they are not well balanced.

The volume has been prepared as a joint special project of the State Division of Vocational Rehabilitation and State Services for the Blind with the consulting guidance of the Governor's Advisory Committee on Vocational Rehabilitation. Its preparation and publication were made possible by a grant of funds from the Federal Office of Vocational Rehabilitation.

I believe this Directory will be of important helpfulness in an essential work. There is urgent need underlying the development of our programs of social improvement throughout our nation and the world in which we live. I know of no endeavor in which imagination and inventive effort are more fruitfully rewarded by their contribution to our spiritual vigor, which alone makes useful our ingenuity in material ventures.

Orville L. Freeman
Governor
State of Minnesota

You May Be Led . . .

to inquire, as you use this volume, concerning the source of the data contained in it, the procedures in gathering the data, what was learned beyond that which is revealed by this printing, what such material may be used to accomplish beyond the preparation of this referral guide. The following paragraphs are offered to share with you, as a professional person serving patients or clients, current thinking of the Governor's Advisory Committee on Vocational Rehabilitation and the sponsors, who warmly invite your participation in the vital task of shaping the course of future rehabilitation developments in Minnesota.

Early in 1958, a planning group held several meetings. It was quickly recognized that the technology and specific effort required to contribute to a better way of life for disabled persons, as for any disadvantaged group, must come from the thoroughly coordinated cooperative work and interest of public and voluntary groups and professionals in private practice. The intensity and variety of service needs is rather clearly understood. The availability of services and facilities is expanding at an increasing pace. Planning, however, seems imperative to their effective geographical distribution. The planning group recognized that by listing the present agencies with a detail of their services, their more efficient use and balance would almost surely follow. From the study of current services, it was believed that it would be possible to identify unmet needs by type of service and location. It was concluded that this was essential information for both state and local planners.

A proposed project for a survey of rehabilitation resources in Minnesota and a demonstration of their more effective coordination and use was described in considerable detail. It was submitted to the Federal Office of Vocational Rehabilitation with a request for financial support for completion of the project. The request was granted. In October, 1958, a staff consisting of a project director and secretary was employed. Office space was generously provided by the Wilder Foundation of St. Paul. Tentative project designs were finalized and the development of survey instruments and materials was begun.

Supervisory staff members of State Services for the Blind and the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation were trained to use the survey instruments in a uniform manner by the project director. Each agency and facility known to provide services contributing to vocational adjustment of disabled persons was surveyed personally by a staff member and the information he obtained was systematically recorded.

The amount of material obtained was substantial. In order to prepare this Directory items were screened for inclusion which would identify each agency or facility, the specific services offered and the staffing available at the time of survey. These items were then rechecked and approved by each agency studied. The compilation and printing of the Directory completes the initial phase of the project effort. It is recognized that periodic revision will be required if the Directory is to have permanent value. Such up-dating is planned by the sponsors.

Many of the agencies listed also provide services which do not particularly relate to disability and vocational rehabilitation. These services are not included since they are beyond the scope of this work. Also excluded are other services which relate less immediately to the solution of vocational rehabilitation problems such as the substantial programs for impaired children. These might well be included in a future edition.

A coding system designed to permit the machine tabulation of the material obtained has been developed so that any item or combination of items of information which might be deemed pertinent to the study of facilities or specific services in any area of the state may be readily obtained. The smallest geographic area provided for in the coding is the county unit.

Phase II of the special project began in October, 1959. Its purpose involves a demonstration of the more effective coordination and increased utilization of Minnesota's rehabilitation resources. It is believed that an important result of the first year's work will be the availability for the first time of sufficient factual material to permit community and area leaders to examine, as never before, both resources and unmet needs. Both information and interpretive data within the limits of the material gathered for this study will be made available to interested local persons. Prosecution of the project is assured through September, 1960. The project staff, the active assistance of the sponsors and of the Governor's Advisory Committee on Vocational Rehabilitation will be available during this period to community leaders and organizations upon request for consultation, information and advice.

USE OF THE DIRECTORY

This Directory of Rehabilitation Resources is divided into four parts and three appendices.

Part I is an alphabetical listing of resources. Part II is an indexing of services with an alphabetical list of resources offering service. Parts I and II are designed to help locate resources and specific services.

Part III is a brief description of each resource with information about the title, address, telephone number, sponsor, purpose, admission procedure, clientele served, fee policy, services available, staff and area served. Part III is designed to provide information necessary to understand and utilize a resource.

Part IV is a listing of local offices of state agencies. Part IV, in connection with Part III, is designed to aid in the location and utilization of state agencies.

Appendix A (Glossary of Terms Used in the Project and the Reports and Publications Incident to it) was designed to aid in the interpretation of terms used in the survey and directory.

Appendix B (Directory of Business, Professional and Vocational Training Resources in Minnesota) was designed to aid in the location of training agencies in Minnesota, in addition to specialized training agencies for handicapped persons.

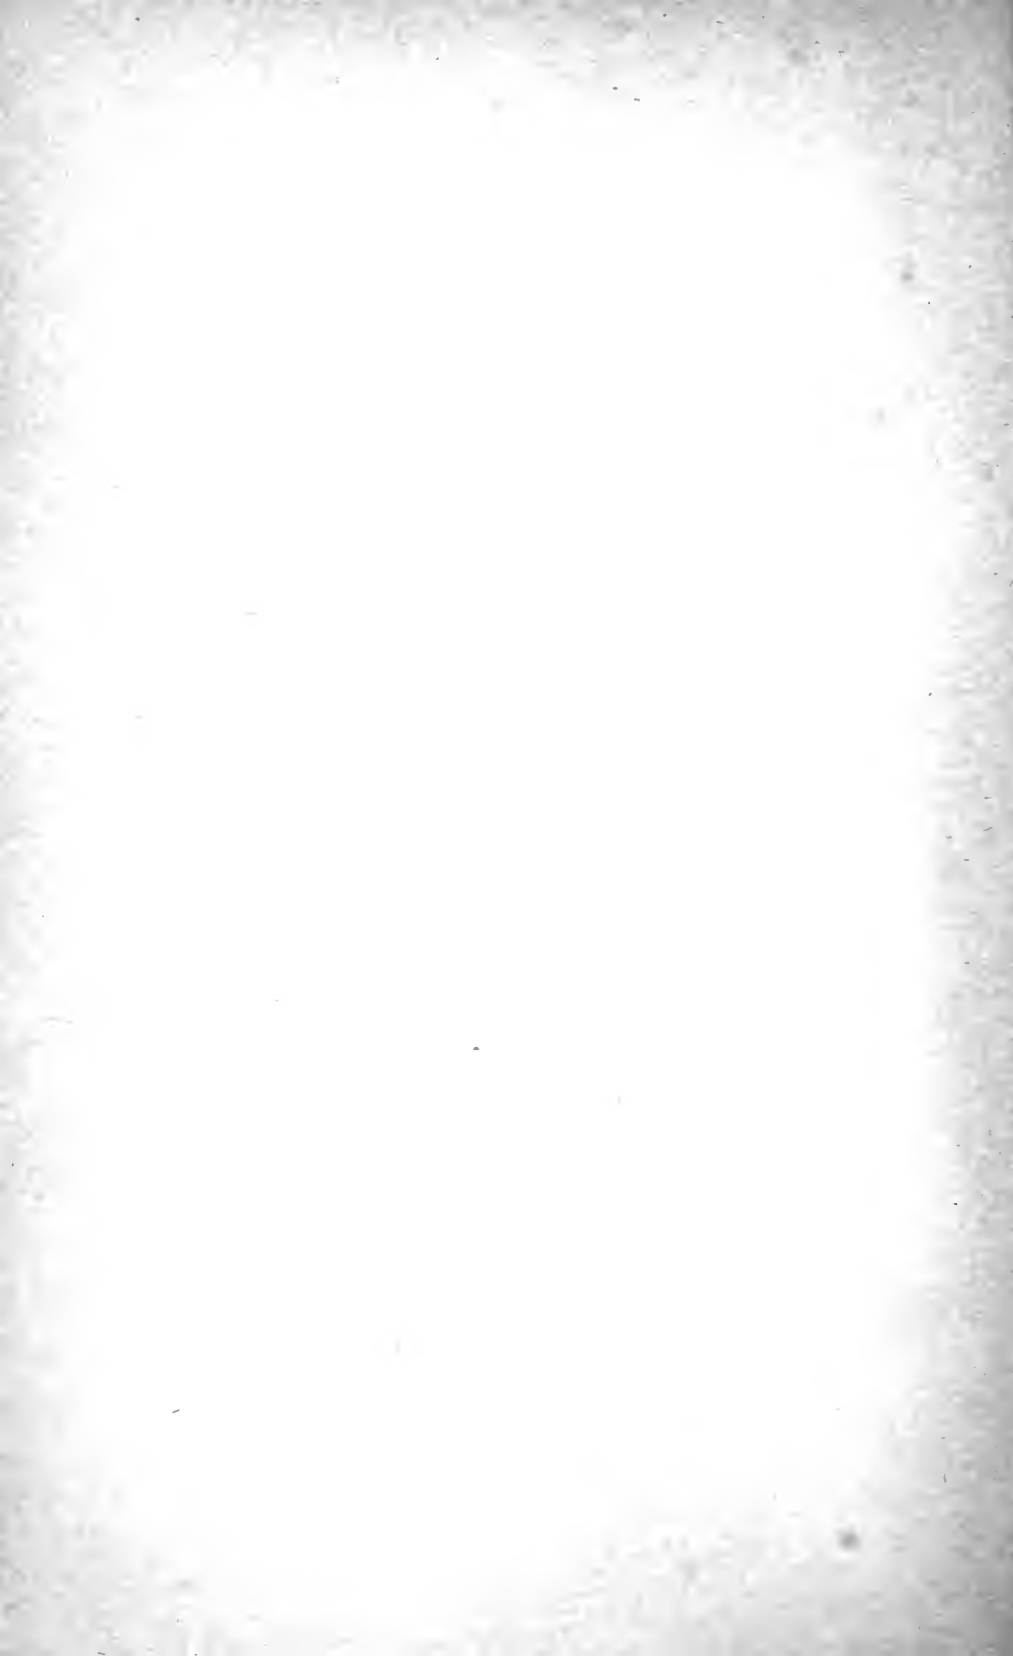

Appendix C (Other Directories and Reference Materials) was designed to aid in locating directories and other reference materials presenting information relevant to rehabilitation.

Appendix A

GLOSSARY OF TERMS USED IN THE PROJECT AND THE REPORTS AND PUBLICATIONS INCIDENT TO IT

ACADEMIC TRAINING refers to education and training in a recognized school or institution.

ADAPTIVE EQUIPMENT is an especially designed, or modified piece of equipment, or machine, which is prescribed to increase the functioning capacity of the patient.

ALCOHOLIC COUNSELING is the providing of advice, encouragement and personal relationships required to assist an individual to discontinue the use of alcoholic beverages.

AUDIOMETRIC EXAMINATION is a test of hearing ability by means of an audiometer.

AUDITORY TRAINING is training under supervision and controlled conditions in the recognition and interpretation of sounds, with special reference to speech, music and rhythm. This training is often given to candidates for hearing aids.

CAMPING refers to those facilities which can accommodate disabled persons and provide them with a combined program of recreation, crafts, socialization, sports program, etc., with adequate supervision and care.

CLINICAL PSYCHOLOGY EVALUATION is the evaluation of the personality of the individual and of the factors which are most important to the harmonious integration of that personality.

CORRECTIVE THERAPY utilizes exercise and activity as a therapeutic medium for the purpose of carrying out a physician's prescription for the treatment of physical or psychiatric disorders.

DRUG AND DIET THERAPY requires that a pharmacist and a dietitian carry out the instructions of a physician in the treatment of disorders through drug and diet prescriptions.

EQUIPMENT LOANS refers to the service involving the loan of equipment such as wheelchairs, crutches, bedpans, lifts and other devices useful to disabled persons in adjusting to their disabilities.

GRANTS FOR RESEARCH AND TRAINING refers to the granting or allocating of public or private funds to encourage and support inquiry into better and more effective ways to prevent, treat or promote adjustment to impairments so as to avoid disability or handicap. The training grants are made to encourage acquisition of skills by persons needed to prevent, treat and reduce disability.

HOMEMAKER TRAINING involves training of disabled persons in the skills and capacities needed to do the tasks required in caring for a home.

INTELLIGENCE TESTING refers to the giving and interpreting of standardized individual tests of mental capacity.

INTERNAL MEDICINE means diagnosis and treatment of diseases such as cardiac conditions, diabetes, tuberculosis, allergies, circulatory disorders, etc., by a specialist employing medical as differentiated from surgical methods.

LIPREADING TRAINING is training in understanding speech by watching the speaker's mouth and facial expressions.

NEUROLOGY refers to the diagnosis and treatment of diseases of the nervous system.

OCCUPATIONAL THERAPY is the carrying out of a treatment plan prescribed by a physician, to attain psychological, physical and vocational objectives by involving the patient in work-type exercise adapted to meet his special needs.

ON-THE-JOB TRAINING is training for a vocational objective by performing progressively more difficult tasks in the actual work situation under the tutelage of experienced persons in the trade or occupation.

OPHTHALMOLOGY is the diagnosis and treatment of diseases of the eye.

ORTHODONTICS is the branch of dentistry concerned with the treatment and correction of irregularities of the teeth.

ORTHOPEDIC SURGERY is a branch of surgery which has to do with the treatment of chronic diseases of the joints and spine and the correction of deformities.

OTOLARYNGOLOGY involves diagnosis and treatment of diseases of the ear, nose and throat.

PARENT COUNSELING is professional support given the parents of disabled children through advice, encouragement and exploration of the family problems arising out of the disability.

PERSONAL ADJUSTMENT TRAINING is designed to help the individual function efficiently; to develop or increase work-tolerance; to develop good work habits; to promote skills or techniques that will compensate where disability interferes with the activities of efficient living.

PERSONALITY TESTING refers to giving and interpreting of tests of personality, such as the Minnesota Multiphasic Personality Inventory, Rorschach Psychodiagnostics, or Thematic Apperception Test.

PHYSICAL MEDICINE is a medical specialty which utilizes physical agents and therapeutic exercise in diagnosis and treatment of disease.

PHYSICAL THERAPY employs water, electricity, mechanics, massage and exercise in the treatment of disease or physical abnormality.

PLACEMENT FOLLOW-UP involves a continuing check on the individual after he has been placed in employment to insure that he continues to function successfully on the job and that the job proves to be appropriate for him.

PRE-RETIREMENT COUNSELING refers to giving advice and information to persons requiring assistance in planning for their retirement from regular work.

PREVOCATIONAL EVALUATION involves a practical assessment of the client's aptitudes, interests, work habits and motivations. This assessment is typically done in an environment where skills and aptitudes can be observed in an actual-work setting.

PROSTHETIC APPLIANCES are devices designed to take the place, insofar as possible, of a part of the human body.

PSYCHIATRY is the diagnosis and treatment of mental disorders.

PSYCHOTHERAPY involves primarily a face-to-face interpersonal relationship between the clinician and the client in a clinical interview. In the sense used here it might supplement shock or drug treatments, psychosurgery, hypnosis, etc., but it does not include these techniques.

RECREATIONAL THERAPY is planned, purposive exercise and activity designed to bring about a better understanding of the individual and to afford him emotional release and consequent achievement of a higher level of adjustment.

REHABILITATION NURSING involves consciously relating nursing functions to the various rehabilitating therapies that the patient is undergoing and attempts to enhance their effectiveness by understanding their goals and by promoting their continuing application.

SELECTIVE PLACEMENT refers to placing a client in a job with special consideration being given to his abilities, physical and psychological condition, unique requirements, etc., and his employer's needs, resources and limitations.

SHELTERED WORK is work provided under circumstances that are more favorable to the accommodation of disabled employees than are usually found in competitive employment. It is usually offered in workshops under the supervision of persons specially oriented to the problems of disabled persons at work. It is designed to provide remunerative employment to disabled individuals not easily absorbed in the competitive labor market.

SHOE MODIFICATION refers to the adjustments made in the structure of shoes to aid in management of orthopedic conditions.

SOCIAL CASEWORK is a process of bringing individualized services to persons needing assistance in solving their family, social and economic problems through counsel, referral and cooperative work with appropriate resources.

SOCIAL EVALUATION is the securing and evaluation of social history material for the purpose of understanding the client as a unique individual and recognizing his needs and potentials in the rehabilitation process. The data are related to the total problem of the individual and are useful in planning the rehabilitation procedures to be used.

SOCIAL GROUP WORK involves assisting individuals to meet their needs and develop their interests in socially acceptable ways by working in a group under the guidance of and with the assistance of a trained social group work leader.

SPEECH EVALUATION AND THERAPY involves the diagnosis of speech problems by a speech pathologist and applying the indicated procedures to correct the problems.

SPLINTING AND BRACING involves the prescribing, supplying and fitting of devices which serve to control the action of specific joints to prevent motion, to increase motion, and to increase muscle power.

THORACIC SURGERY is the surgical treatment of diseases of the thorax.

UROLOGY is the diagnosis and treatment of disease or malfunctioning of the genito-urinary tract.

VOCATIONAL COUNSELING AND GUIDANCE is the process in which a counselor works in a face-to-face situation with the individual in order to help him to understand both his problems and his potentialities and to assist him in designing a program of adjustment and self-improvement to the end that he will make a satisfactory vocational and social adjustment.

VOCATIONAL EVALUATION means to gather, to interpret, to analyze and to synthesize all the vocationally significant data regarding the individual and to relate them to occupational requirements and opportunities.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING includes any organized form of instruction which provides the knowledge and skills that are essential for performing the tasks involved in an occupation.
